

JASON'S PULL TABS

Jason began collecting pull tabs in 1999 as part of a service project for his grandfather's men's group. In 2005, he took over the program from the men's group and began collecting pull-tabs on his own. Jason has enlisted the support of his neighborhood, his church, several schools and his swim club for his project (and of course, Matthew 25: Ministries). To date, Jason has collected almost 4,000 gallons worth of pull-tabs.

Collected tabs are donated to another charity in Cincinnati, who awarded Jason certificates for surpassing his 1,000 gallon, 2,000 gallon and 3,000 gallon collection benchmarks. Donated pull-tabs provide revenue which helps support this charity's programs.

To date, Jason has raised almost $7,000 in tab donations plus over $3,000 in cash donations. Jason's dedication and commitment as well as his remarkable achievements have been chronicled several times in local media.

Jason wants everyone to know he could not have achieved this success without the love and support of his family.

HOW TO SUPPORT JASON'S PULL TABS

Jason is less than 100 gallons away from passing the 4,000 gallon mark. Please support Jason's Pull-Tabs by bringing your tabs to Matthew 25: Ministries and turning them in at the front desk. Your pull-tab donation will be combined with other donations to help Jason continue his efforts.

Jason has been a valued part of Matthew 25 for many years. Jason has been an invaluable asset on our summer mission trips, helping remove old, worn out carpet in two different schools and replacing it with attractive, easy care carpet squares. Jason also helps maintain the appearance and cleanliness of Matthew 25: Ministries' processing and warehousing areas, and contributes to our recycling efforts.

We are happy to support Jason's dedication to this project.
